Without doubt, this is the very best function by any writer. It typically will not charge too much. I discovered this publication from my dad and i encouraged this pdf to discover.

It is instructive to note the relation of the refrigeration process to the second law of thermodynamics. (See Art. 1177, Heat.) This law asserts that heat can not pass from a cold to a hot body by a self-acting process unaided by external agency. In other words, whenever heat is transferred from a body to a warmer body, there must be some work expended to effect the transfer. In the process described above, the refrigerating-machine is the agent used in transferring the heat from the refrigerating room to the condensing water, and the work expended by the machine on the fluid is that required in the transfer. The transfer of heat may be expressed algebraically as follows: Let Q_s = heat delivered to condenser in B. T. U.; (Q_c = heat taken from body cooled in B. T. U.; H_7 = work in foot-pounds done by engine on working fluid; $J = 778$ = mechanical equivalent of heat. Then, $Q_c = Q_s + y$. (108.) CAPACITY AND EFFICIENCY OF REFRIGERATING-MACHINES 1338. Refrigerating Capacity.--The capacity of a refrigerating-machine is a measure of its ability to abstract heat. The unit of refrigerating, or ice-melting, capacity is the quantity of heat required to melt one ton (2,000 pounds) of ice at 32 F. to water at 32 F. Since 142.65 B....
